Archerfish The archerfish, also known as the glass-eyed piranha, is a fish in the family Centrarchidae, native to the southeast Pacific Ocean from southern Japan and through the South China Sea to northern Australia. Description The archerfish has a distinct deep blue body, with a gold edge along the sides. Its stomach is protruding from its mouth, also giving it the name of glass-eyed piranha. The front of the head is dark in the male and cream-coloured in the female. Its eyes are always closed. Distribution The archerfish is found in tropical and subtropical waters, especially from southern Japan and Taiwan to northern Australia, between latitudes 27° and 37°. Habitat The archerfish lives in subtropical waters, and prefers clean, sheltered water to rocky reefs. Feeding Archerfish hunt for food during the day. They are not normally active after dark. Reproduction The archerfish is oviparous and reproduces by spawning. The male fish will release sperm into water where it deposits a "ladder" of eggs. A female will lay up to 20 eggs at a time. As soon as the eggs are laid, the male will swim over them, fertilise them, and attach his eggs to the ladder. This causes the eggs to stick together. The male will fertilise the eggs, and as they hatch they will leave the nest. Saving Humans The archerfish is a popular aquarium fish. When kept in a relatively clean environment, it is peaceful and well-suited to similar conditions at human lakes. References Category:Centrarchidae Category:Fish of the Pacific Ocean Category:Fish of Japan Category:Fish of Taiwan Category:Fish of Australia Category:Fish described in 1852Q: Calculate $\lim_{x \rightarrow \infty} \frac{\sqrt[3]{x+1} - \sqrt[3]{x}}{x}$ I have a problem in my textbook; $\lim_{x \rightarrow \infty} \frac{\sqrt[3]{x+1} - \sqrt[3]{x}}{x}$. If I start to solve the limit I get $\frac{\sqrt[3]{x+1} - \sqrt[3]{x}}{x}$.

What's New in the Adobe Photoshop 2021 (Version 22.0.0)?

Q: jQuery creating a new array from selector? I am trying to create a new array from a selector. This would be the same way that the doc would construct an array and return the values contained in them, sort of. i.e. `myselector = $('div.entry-list ul li');` `myarray = [];` `myarray.append(myselector);` // this would return the array of all "li" elements within myselector. What I would like to do is build a new array that would contain all the values of myselector. This would allow me to do things like `myselector.attr('id');` and it would return the 'id' attribute of the "ul" element the myselector is attached to. A: `myarray = myselector.get();` This will return an array containing all the elements of myselector. If you want to have only the first element, you can use `var first = myselector.first();` A: All in one, tested and working: `var MyWrapper = $('').css({ "width":"95%", "height":"auto", "margin":"10px" });` `var MYarray = $('*', MyWrapper).get().map(function(v) { return $(v).attr('id'); });` `alert(MYarray);` // [id1, id2] A: I think you can just `get()` as other answers stated: `var myarray = myselector.get();` Q: Can I use LibVLC in a QtCreator GUI application? I've just installed LibVLC 2.2.0 in Ubuntu 12.04 LTS, and I'm trying to get it to work in a Qt5 GUI application using the C++ API. I've just tried the following code, which works just fine on the terminal and the Qt Creator console.
`#include "qtmain.h" #include int main(int argc, char* argv[]) {`
